A subtle fusing of influences drawn from both the Eastern and Western worlds softly permeates the watercolors of Henry Wo Yue-Kee. With his strong heritage of Oriental brushwork, Wo combines traditional Chinese principles with his own very personal poetry.

His paintings are in the permanent collections of Asian Art Museum, San Francisco, CA; Art Museum of Hawaii, HI; Birmingham Museum of Art and Mobile Museum of Art, AL; Amherst College, MA; Springfield Art Museum, MO; Lymn Allyn Art Museum, CT; Rockhill Nelson Art Museum of Kansas City, MO; City of Hamilton Art Gallery, Australia; Hong Kong Museum of Art, Hong Kong, and Peking University, Beijing, China; National Museum of History and Taiwan Museum of Art, Taiwan.

"The Inner World of Henry Wo Yue-Kee is a collection drawn from decades of work which I would like to share with fellow artists and art lovers from all over the world." – Henry Wo Yue-Kee

"Henry Wo Yue-Kee is in possession of extravagant facility and virtuosity in the use of the medium and one cannot but admire the result." – Art Magazine, New York

"Poetry in Paint", "Ancient idea with a modern spirit" – description of Wo's work by Chao Shao-An, master of Lingnan School

"The dexterity of Wo's brush has the power of that magic touch which turns these common themes (birds, flowers, landscapes, plants and animals) ... into symbols of happiness, friendliness, peace,..." – C.C. Wang, prominent artist and collector of Chinese paintings
